—In a Brussels church is preserved a thorn supposed to be from the crown which Christ wore on the cross.

—The Methodist preacher at Fostoria, O., has been ostracized by his congregation because he married a negro woman.

—Rev. Mr. Campbell, pastor of the Lancaster and Waco churches, filled the pulpit at the Baptist church here Sunday morning and night. He was en route to the Bates Creek Association, which convenes at Scaffold Cane, Rockcastle county, to-day.

—Rev. H. C. Morrison arrived Friday. Since he was here in July he has held meetings with Drs. Caridine and Rhineheart at Waco and Scottsville, Texas, and Victoria, Miss., where there were tremendous outpourings of the holy spirit. Over 600 either professed conversion or entire sanctification.

—Rev. H. C. Morrison got his dates wrong and was not aware that he was due to open the Bethel camp meeting near Covington, till Manager J. W. Wilson, came over and informed him. He left on Saturday's train, but will be back to-morrow and speak till Saturday for the prohibition cause.

—The liquor dealers' association of St. Louis attempted to get out an injunction against Sam Jones and his camp meeting, on the ground that it was a disgrace to the city and a menace to the morals and reputation of its citizens. Samuel had been very bitter in his remarks concerning the traffic and had said "a woman might as well be married to a dog as a saloon keeper."

Denies the Statement and Asks a Correction.

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.)

In the last issue of your paper appeared a statement from your Broadhead correspondent, which is an absurdity and an untruth. And to prove to the world that the statement is an untruth I give his words and reason therefrom:

Mr. Thos. Austin, U. S. D. O., told me that he had left 20-odd barrels of whisky at Mr. Bethurum's warehouse and that he had the key and that when he went back to see about it 'twas all gone except one piece of a barrel."

Now Mr. Austin did not tell your honorable correspondent any such thing for he is too much of a gentleman to make any such remark. The records of his office show that I have not been engaged in the business of distilling for more than two years. With respect to your correspondent and justice to myself I ask the gentleman to rectify this at once.

THE CROWNLESS MARTYRS OF THE MARRIAGE RING.

BY E. T. SMITH.

"For your sake! What would I not do for your sake? I will go! I will take the Eastbound train for New York. I hear the train coming. Good-bye."

Then overcome he leaned his head wearily on the back of the bench.

"How can I thank you?" she exclaimed. "Now good-bye, my dearest, my truest, my best friend. Nightly I shall pray for your happiness."

He extended his hand without raising his head. She stooped over, brushed back the hair from his pale brow, then implanted a kiss there, so pure that the recording angel recorded the act to her glory and not to her shame.

When he started, looked up, she had fled, fleet as a fawn, towards the hotel.

When he reached the depot his train had not arrived. It was the whistle of the Westbound train that he heard. This train was panting, impatiently, to be off, but the bloody eye of the order signal transfixed and held it with its Gorgon stare.

"Hello! Charlie, which way now?" Conductor Wright of the Westbound greeted him, as he entered the ticket office.

"Going East. How long before the Eastbound train comes?"

"It's an hour late. Just getting orders to meet it at Alderson's. Jump on with me and meet it. I'll stop when we meet and put you on your train," said Conductor Wright, as the operator handed him the orders.

This just suited Mr. Carter. He wanted to keep moving. Any thing to keep him from thinking, so he climbed on the train as it moved off.

When the trains met he secured a berth in the New York sleeper, and laid down without undressing.

"Are you sick, sir?" asked the porter, astonished that he wanted a berth at that hour.

"No, but broke down and don't want to be interrupted," he replied as he closed the curtains.

The train swept along the banks of the sinuous Greenbrier like an embattled hurricane. The cars rocked and swayed and swayed with the accelerated speed. He heard the conductor say, as he passed his berth, "We'll make the Washington connection if Chalkley keeps up this lick."

Then he felt the brakes grinding on the wheels and the speed begin to slacken. Then he heard four shrill whistles and the train came to a stand. Through a crack in his window curtain he saw the trainmen gather around one of the trucks of the sleeper. The odor of burning grease filled the car. "A hot box," he said as he turned over. In the rear of the sleeper he could hear the flagman rummaging around and then he heard him halloo: "Say porter, where's my signal case? I put it right here in this this corner when I got on."

"I ain't seen nothing of it. Guess it's in the forward sleeper though. I saw you go in that car when you got on at Mt. Vernon."

Then there was a shriek of agony, a sound of ponderous driving wheels grinding on the rails, a crash of timbers, then darkness, then a blank.

The stock train had plunged, at full speed, into the rear of the sleeper, splitting the sleeper in twain, part of it going down one side of the embankment, and part of it on the other side. The engine of the stock train lay on its side at the bottom of the embankment, and from its dome the steam and hot water were gushing out with a deafening roar. Above the hissing steam rose the cries and moans of the wounded and dying.

Mr. Carter had fallen on the side of the embankment opposite to the engine. His body, supported by one of the sleeper's seats, lay diagonally across a ditch, which carried the water from a culvert that ran under the embankment at that point.

Water that escaped from the overturned engine on the opposite side of the embankment, ran through this culvert, and being dammed by the wreckage, formed a pool of scalding temperature, under him, from which a cloud of steam rose in almost suffocating density.

When Mr. Carter recovered consciousness and found his arms free, he proceeded to remove the bed-clothing and curtains which had bandaged his head, and which, so wet were they from the condensed steam, had nearly suffocated him.

As soon as he had freed his head he attempted to draw up his benumbed legs, but found they were tightly pinioned by some heavy timbers near the ankles. The slightest movement sent a thrill of anguish through him. Turning his head to one side, so as to inhale a little of the steam as possible, he quietly awaited the arrival of the rescuing party that were at work on the opposite side of the embankment. Farther down under the wreck he could hear an imprisoned passenger calling for help in a voice which indicated that its owner's lungs were uninjured in the accident.

Presently the owner of the stentorian voice crawled up under the wreck to where Mr. Carter was lying, and said: "My God man! Get out of the way and let me pass. Why don't you try to get out? I can see a window just beyond you through which we can escape."

"I am sorry, my friend, but my legs are fast, I can't move," replied Mr. Carter. "Jerk them loose! Don't block up the way." "I fear both of my legs are broken. It agonizes me to move them," said Mr. Carter. "Be quiet now. I would let you by if I could release my feet, but that is impossible. A piece of heavy timber lies across my ankles."

"Oh! God what must I do? Can't you twist yourself to one side and let me pass?" "No, I tell you I am pinioned fast. Keep quiet, calm yourself, a rescuing party is at work on the other side of the embankment. When our turn comes they will get us out. Where are you hurt?"

"I'm not hurt, but I had just as well be, for I'll die from suffocation under here. I'll make this railroad company smoke for this as sure as my name is Allyn."

Just then a blaze flamed up at the farther end of the wreck. It grew larger and larger as it crunched the inflammable material of the cars with its fiery fangs.

"My God! the wreck's on fire! Let me out! Help! Oh! God save me! Spare my life!" exclaimed the man who was going to make the railroad company smoke and he beat and banged the imprisoning timbers with his clenched hands.

"Say my friend, be a man. All that banging and yelling will do no good. You say your name is Allyn. Is it Thomas Allyn?" asked Mr. Carter, and he tremblingly awaited the answer.

"Yes, that's my name, but my God can't you fix some way for me to get out?" "Thomas Allyn?" thought Mr. Carter. "That is not husband's name. If it is her husband he is in my power now! No earthly power can check those flames which are fast coming this way."

"Mr. Allyn, are you married?" asked Mr. Carter with bated breath.

"Yes. My wife, my poor wife!"

"Was she on the train with you?"

"No, she's at White Sulphur waiting for me now. Oh! My God!"

"What is her name?" asked Mr. Carter, gulping between each word.

"Evelyn. Oh! Lord! Lord! To be burned alive. Help!" broke forth Mr. Allyn with renewed vigor.

Thou' of refined gold my watch should be made,

And its hands with diamonds should sparkle and shine,

Thou' with richest jewels its case be inlaid,

And rarest rubies its pious confine,

'T would not be for these its value I'd measure.

To lose thee, I'd not sigh in despair,

For in its case there's a more precious treasure,

A wee curl of my Love's sweet, brown hair.

More precious to me is this dearest treasure,

Than all of the wealth of the land and the sea,

Not jewels nor gold can e'er hope to measure

The priceless value of that curl to me.

Oh! that every strand a hairspring would be

To speed the slow beat of Time's lagging feet:

To haste the dull hours and bring back to me,

The glorious presence of my Love, my Sweet!

The London Fair.

Had I awakened and found myself in the large new amphitheatre on the London fair grounds I would have been puzzled to know "where I was at," notwithstanding the fact I am about as familiar with the section around London as I am with that around Stanford. An amphitheatre with a seating capacity of 2,500 is no small thing for a fair association in a mountain country to put up, but such an one has been built by the Laurel County Fair Association and the best part about it is the association had almost enough money in the treasury to pay for it, cash down.

For the last eight years I have looked forward to going to the London Fair and up to date I have not been disappointed a single time. I like this fair first because it is a good one in every particular and secondly because it is managed and attended by as good a set of people as "ever the sun shone on." No, I haven't missed a single London fair and if I have my say about it I will continue to go as regularly as I have gone since its beginning.

Beyond doubt the fair which closed Friday was the best in the association's history. The show of stock was better and the races would have been a credit to the blue-grass circuit. The rings all filled well and the trots and running races had from three to eight starters. The trot Friday was hotly contested and the track record was lowered 13 seconds. Henry Traynor's Warsaw did it, defeating Quinine S. and Tom Covington. The track is slow and is about 45 yards over a mile and was covered in the last heat in 2:28. Pretty good time for the mountains.

Lincoln's horses was largely and well represented. Mr. J. E. Farris had a string of them. J. E. Cook had two and Tom Napier and Joe McClure, of the East End, had several. Mr. Farris showed his yearling filly, Susie W., by Eagle Bird, dam Nollie Mounce, in the combined ring but by some means the judges saw fit to let her go with the red tie, notwithstanding the kick the audience made against it. Afterwards she was shown in her own ring and easily defeated the field. She was the subject of much favorable comment. Mr. Farris took four ties, Tom Napier won the pacing race with the sorrel horse A. T. Nunneley once owned. Jesse Cook got three ties and Joe McClure two.

One of the most interesting rings was "the best lady rider." Lincoln county was again in luck and handsome Miss Mayne Lynn won the pretty gold watch offered by the association. Miss Mollie, the lovely little daughter of clever Capt. Frank Riley, got the red tie. Both of the young ladies acquitted themselves very creditably. Mrs. John Bastin, formerly of this county, took the premium in the fancy turnout ring and Mrs. Dr. Jackson Givens, whose husband lived in this county until a few years ago, took the blue tie for "the best lady driver."

A delightful hop was given Thursday night at the Kiley House in honor of the visiting ladies, who were present in large numbers. Refreshments were served at the proper hour and nothing was left undone that would add to the pleasure of those who were fortunate enough to attend.

I am under lasting obligations to President W. L. Brown, Secretary C. R. Baugh and Director R. M. Jackson for courteous treatment. They are the right men for the offices they fill and the success of the fair is not a little due to them.

I am glad to be able to say that our excellent correspondent, Mr. John Pearl, will in the future be much more prompt in writing from this place. E. C. W.

SOMERSET FAIR.—The Queen & Crescent route will run special trains from Oneida and from Burgin, including intermediate stations, to Somerset and return, to accommodate all desiring to visit the fair, Sept. 4th to 7th inclusive. ## Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at A. R. Penny's Drug Store. Regular size 50 cents.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is enclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primory, Campbell county, Tenn. For sale by Dr. S. G. THE income tax law of 2 per cent., on incomes of $4,000 and over, provides that it shall begin Jan. 1, 1895, and continue to Jan. 1, 1900, consequently the first tax will be levied on incomes of 1894. They embrace two classes, incomes of individuals and of corporations. The taxable income of corporations is that above its operating expenses, of $4,000 and over, and must be paid before dividends. Charitable, religious and educational corporations are exempted, as are State, counties, municipalities, building and loan associations, certain savings banks and mutual companies. Besides the $4,000 not taxed, the exemptions allowed individuals are the necessary expenses of conducting a business, all interest paid or due within the year, local taxes, losses in trade or from fire, storms or shipwreck, not compensated for by insurance or otherwise; worthless debts, and income on which the tax has been paid by corporations. Every person having an income of $3,500 must report it to the collector of internal revenue for his district, or his deputy. A 50 per cent. penalty is to be charged for neglect or refusal, and 100 per cent. penalty for fraud. Corporations will be fined $1,000 for failure to file statements and 2 per cent. a month on amount of tax due till paid. The tax is payable July 1. If it is not paid within 10 days after that a penalty of 5 per cent. is to be charged, together with interest at the rate of 1 per cent. per month. The banks are the only corporations here that will have to pay, but several farmers and others will have to come to time.

THE History of the First Kentucky Cavalry is out and we are indebted to Sergeant Eastham Tarrant, the author, for a copy. From a cursory examination it appears to be a most complete history of that noted regiment, in its efforts to preserve the union, from its origin and organization to the close of the war and the work is credit to the author. Many of the scenes and incidents read almost like fairy stories and yet they are but the recital of the every day life of the gallant organization, led by the brave Col. Frank Wolford. The names of all who joined the regiment are given, together with pictures of the great tragedy, including that of Col. Wolford and Silas Adams, Surgeon Hawkins Brown, R. E. Huffman, John J. Elliott, W. T. Humphrey and many others. The book is written in graphic style and is intensely interesting. It should be in the hands of everyone of the survivors and their friends, the price being fixed to put it in the reach of all, as follows: Bound in fine English cloth, $2.50 per copy; in red Morocco, $3.50. Where no agents are employed, a copy of either binding will be sent to any address prepaid on receipt of price, by addressing, E. Tarrant, Liberty, Ky.

COL. LEER, a rich stock breeder of Bourbon, and a great fancier of the Breckinridge stock, said in Lexington that "It would be an honor to the maidens of the blue-grass, especially the daughters of these tobacco men, to be bred to Col. Breckinridge." The dirty remark came near being the cause of the colonel's demise, and it should have been. One of "these tobacco men" rushed at him with a drawn knife and for a few seconds it looked like the colonel would be made a demmed moist body. Unfortunately the hand that held the knife was stayed by a by-stander and the colonel still lives, but he will be more particular in the future how he gives vent to his disgusting views. Willie's performances are bad enough, but some of his fool friends, notably Phil Thompson, this man Leer and others, out Breckinridge Breckinridge in their shameless assertions.

THE Hon. David G. Colson evidently believes that Mnsic hath power to soothe the savage, Split a rock or bust a cabbage, for he has hired the kid band of Barbourville to accompany him to all his appointments to speak and make music for the occasions. He has also uniformed the boys at a cost of $185 and fitted up a wagon for their transportation. Money, music and magniloquence will be his watch words during the Congressional campaign and they are a trio that are hard to beat either in the mountains or elsewhere.

BUCK KILGORE will no more kick down a door in the House of Representatives. Charles Yoakum defeated him for the Congressional nomination in the 3d Texas district, after a deadlock for two days.

THE tariff bill became a law last night at 12 with the president's signature. He could not be a party to such a piece of "party perfidy and party diabolism."

Those who heard Hon. John D. White, at Williamsburg, dress down Colson, Bradley and the latter's "chief cook and bottle washer, Yerkes," for conniving together and forcing a primary election in the 11th, say it was worth many times the price of admission. He went for them fore and aft to the great amusement of the crowd, especially the democratic portion of it. The effect of his bolt is problematic, but we fear there are too many republicans in the benighted regions of the bloody eleventh to give democracy a hope. In 1892, Adams (rep.) received 17,087 votes, Hindman (dem.) 10,483, Darham (pop.) 1,259. Adams' plurality was 6,604; majority 5,345. In 1890 Wilson (rep.) received 9,612 votes, Howard (dem.) 5,964, Chestnut (pop.) 312. Wilson's plurality 3,648.

EX-CZAR REED made the opening speech of the campaign at Old Orchard, Me., Saturday and his remarks were mainly directed to an attempt to prove that the democrats are incompetent to rule the country. The conservative democrats of the North might be capable of satisfactory rule, but they are domineered by the South, where the men, he said, are without business sense and devoted to the theories of a by-gone age. The dethroned Czar, who had to take a back seat and be subject to the Southern Speaker, Mr. Crisp, has always chafed under the restraint, and now that he is away down in the piney woods of Maine he gives vent to his long pent up wrath and indignation, that Southern men should have gotten into the saddle.

BOTH the State and United States seem to be after playing cards with a sharp stick. Under a new law no dealer in Kentucky can sell them until he pays an annual license of $5 and the new tariff bill taxes them two cents a pack. There are only six card factories in the U. S., one being at Cincinnati. Their annual output is about 30,000,000 packs. There are about 75,000 dealers in playing-cards, whose stock on hand is estimated at 10,000,000 packs. The revenue from playing cards for the current year, at the rate of two cents a pack, provided for in the bill, is estimated at $1,000,000.

THE president of the Chesapeake & Ohio railway, Mr. M. E. Ingalls, is demonstrating what good management will do for that company. The first year after its reorganization by Drexel, Morgan & Co., there was a deficit of $198,000 and operating expenses took up 75 per cent. of the earnings. This year discloses a surplus of $634,000 with operating expenses reduced to 67 per cent. While other roads have lost heavily during the year of great depression, the C. & O. shows a surplus of $14,000 over fixed charges and all expenses.

JOHN L. BOSLEY, Esq., editor of the Winchester Sun, and a product of the raging Hanging Fork, of this county, has had the honor of a nomination for Congress thrust upon him. The republican convention at West Liberty made him its standard bearer for the short term in the 10th district, the selection being made over three other opponents on the first ballot. Mr. Bosley will not be elected, but the honor of such a nomination at his age is one not usually conferred and is one which his friends feel very proud of.

MR. WATTESSON has declined, with thanks, the Mississippians' call to the presidency of the United States. He said he had had too many contentions on radical lines to make him available and that "we must in 1896 try to find some democrat who has offended nobody and who has no opinions on any subject that anybody can remember or will vouch for, and perhaps, if times mend, we may elect him."

THE Knights of Pythias are gathering in supreme lodge at Washington from all parts of the country and the city has put on a gala attire in their honor. The most important question to be settled is whether liquor dealers shall be debarred from membership and the likelihood is that they will have to go. The Masons have already pronounced against them.

THE Lexington Leader in paying its respects to the Louisville Commercial characterizes it as a bastard in journalism and a paper without a party, subsisting only on malice and sensationalism and the dirtier the story the more eager this human vulture is to print it.

DR. KOCH, who discovered a consumption cure that didn't cure, has discovered a diphtheria cure with which it is hoped he will be more successful. The treatment is by the removal of the toxin and the New York city board of health has introduced it in the city hospitals.

THE Somerset Paragon declares for Col. Silas Adams for Congress and from the present outlook believes he will be re-nominated and that those who are opposing him now are only endangering their own future promotion.

—Miss Mary Desha, the sister-in-law of Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, publishes a statement which she addresses "To the Men and Women of the Blue-Grass." Miss Desha says that it has never for one moment entered her mind that her brother-in-law would be returned to Congress, declaring the thought of such a thing an insult to a State whose boast has been that "her men were brave and her women virtuous." Her fear is that the politicians will send some one "like unto him," however, and she makes a powerful appeal to elect some man who will vindicate the State, the district and the memory of her beloved sister.

Come in and see the new goods whether you want to buy or not. Danks, the Jeweler.

"PINK COTTAGE" will be sold by Commissioner Warren, court day in September, to satisfy a mortgage debt made by Rev. George O. Barnes.

If you want your watch or any jewelry repaired, take it to Penny's. Mr. Deckelman does the work well and promptly; never disappoints a customer.

UNTIL Sept. 1, 1894, we will sell a 5-year guaranteed, high armed, six-drawer sewing machine for $25 and a No. 7 six-hole Arizona cook stove for $14.50. W. H. Wearan & Co.

TO SCHOOL TRUSTEES.—As I shall be visiting the districts for the next two or three months, you will not find me at my office except on Saturdays and county court days. W. F. McClary.

SATURDAY was a day of mishaps. A negro was found cut in two at Maywood, Willis Rowdan had his leg and shoulder broken, Centres shot Wm. Moutray, Dick Hocker had a leg cut off by the cars, &c., and so on.

THIS is the last week of vacation. The Seminary, Prof. F. J. Duffy, principal, will open Monday and Tuesday. Prof. J. M. Hubbard will throw open the doors of the college, for, let us hope, an unusually profitable session.

LEG CUT OFF.—While getting on a train at Shelby City to ride to his home at Junction City, Richard, the 12-year-old son of Joe F. Hocker, fell beneath the wheels and had one of his legs cut off. He rallied after the shock and is getting along well.

DEAD AND UNKNOWN.—The terribly mangled body of a negro man was found near Maywood depot Saturday and Squire W. L. Dawson, in the absence of a coroner, was sent for to hold an inquest. He went and found a man cut in two, by the cars, with his lower limbs mashed to a pulp. There was absolutely nothing by which to identify the body, nothing being found on it but an old purse with a lock of kinky hair in it; no writing and no money. The man was very black, about 35 years of age and had large scars on his left cheek. A verdict was rendered that the man was unknown and that he came to his death by being run over by an L. & N. train.

FOR WILLIE.—The newspapers tell of this incident at Georgetown during the big Breckinridge meeting: "Miss Annie Carpenter, who with her sisters, Jennie and Devie, lives in a pretty new cottage on Chambers Avenue, tore down the Owens placard that was tacked on their house. Both her sisters favor Owens and they had another one put up. Miss Annie tore this one down also. Just then the Breckinridge men who had ridden down to Georgetown on horseback, came up and gave three cheers for Miss Annie. They also took up a collection to buy her a handsome lot of cut flowers, but finally decided to send her a fine gold-headed silk umbrella, properly inscribed."

SECURED 'EM.—"Did you hear about the race I had the other day?" asked Constable Thomas Jefferson Benedict of our reporter, who had not had the honor. "I had a warrant for John Centres, charging him with carrying concealed weapons and I found him and another fellow near Maywood. I had nothing against the other fellow, but he thought I had and both broke and run, with me after them. They ran through corn fields, wheat stubble, meadows and woods for about three miles, when at last got them surrounded and said I would shoot them if they didn't surrender."

"How many were with you," the reporter inquired. "By myself," said the officer. "And surrounded them?" "Yes and got 'em too, and Centres was fined $25 and 10 days in jail."

A TERRIBLE accident happened to Mr. Willis G. Rowdan Saturday afternoon. He was driving in his buggy along the pike that was parallel with the Cincinnati Southern, and his daughter, Miss Annie Rowdan, and Miss Lena Barnett were with him. As he was near Mr. Sam M. Owens', a freight train approached and Mr. Rowdan got out to hold his horse. The young ladies also got out. The train had nearly passed before the animal seemed to get frightened and then he made a plunge, throwing Mr. Rowdan down and breaking one of his legs in two places, besides dislocating his shoulder. He was taken to Mrs. Green's, in McKinney, where Drs. Moore and Riffe rendered the necessary surgical attention. At last accounts he was resting as easy as a man of his age, 60 years, can under such painful circumstances.

Look at our Disc harrow with seeder attachment. Higgins & McKinney.

Your chance of a life time will be in the bargain you can secure at Danks this week.

CALL and see my elegant line of fall suitings. The nobbiest line ever shown here. H. C. Rupley.

OUR man with listen thousand dollar stock of jewelry has arrived. He will stay one week only at Danks, the Jeweler's.

T. M. BARRON, of Nancy, Pulaski county, will likely begin the publication of the Nancy Herald, says the Somerset Reporter.

WATCH our window this week. We will show you goods you never saw before and at prices you will never see again. Danks, the Jeweler.

THE declamatory contest at Walten's Opera House Friday night promises to be largely attended. The boys are practicing and are determined to do their best.

A GRAND FA.—Circuit Clerk James P. Bailey received a dispatch from Grayson Saturday that his daughter, Mrs. H. D. Gregory, had presented her husband with a girl, and that both were doing well.

MAYOR S. G. HOCKER is running a side show at his store, without license, but as he charges no admission, nobody can kick. Go in and see the only and original jumping beans; they are great curiosities.

SEVERAL light showers have fallen here in the last few days and in some parts of the county, McKinney for instance, there have been good rains, and the farmers have begun to plow for wheat. Local showers are still promised, with warmer weather to-day.

MEASRS. W. H. WRAGEN, J. S. Owsley, Jr., Wm. Rice, John Meyer, J. D. Weaver, Jack Reut, C. E. Tate, A. H. Severance and Joe F. Waters represented Stanford Diadem Lodge No. 81 at the meeting of the Lancaster Knights of Pythias Lodge Friday night. The membership there numbers 65 and is increasing all the time, three having been added at the last meeting.

REV. GEORGE O. BARNES created a sensation in Lexington Sunday by advocating the renomination of Col. Breckinridge, for whom he said it was the duty of every christian to vote. "How much are you getting for this?" asked a man in the audience. Col. Steve Sharp asked the man to be quiet and then some 15 or 20 ladies got up to leave. Then Mr. Barnes continued: "I expected to make enemies some of you. I have during the past 18 years made many enemies for Christ's sake and I expect to make many more. All of you who cannot forgive an erring brother can leave, but I would be glad for you to hear me out. The worst is over." The sermon has created a profound sensation and is being discussed by everybody at Lexington.

ROBBER.—Last week Simp and Wm. Martin came up from Louisville to get some money due them by Mrs. Martha A. Martin, administrator of their grandfather, Simp Martin. They had $20 with them and they sold a piece of knob land to John Terry for $20. That night they staid at Mrs. Martin's and claim that they were robbed of the $40. Next day Mrs. Martin paid them $12.50, which included a $10 bill that the boys say they recognized as the one they had before the robbery. They told Mrs. Martin so, but she denied it and said she had had the note some time. Mrs. Martin claims that the boys got drunk and lost the money. They did not get out a warrant, as they threatened, but left Saturday saying they would return in time to indict her at circuit court.

KILLED.—Saturday, Wm. Moutray and John Centres were out squirrel hunting, when the latter let his gun go off accidentally. The charge buried itself in Mr. Moutray's hip and cutting several arteries, he came near bleeding to death before help could arrive. Dr. O'Bannon was called and did everything possible, but without avail, death ensuing at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Moutray was a house painter and a clever man. He leaves a wife, but no children. Deceased was a member of the order of Maccabees and held a policy in it for $2,000. Centres, the man who caused his death, is the same who was tried the day before for carrying concealed weapons and given a term in jail, which was suspended for 30 days. If he had been made to go to jail, as he should have been, Moutray might still be alive.

Since the above was written, it has developed that Centres fired the shot deliberately. Mr. Moutray making a dying statement that he shot him on purpose and without cause. A warrant was sworn out last evening and put in the hands of an officer for execution, so the fellow may get his deserts after all.

A short time before he died, Mr. Moutray called several friends in and asked that Centres be sent for. He then said that he heard Centres shoot and called to him and asked what he shot at. On being told that it was a hawk, Moutray fully said "you are a liar." Here Centres interrupted him to say, that "d—n liar" was used. Moutray continued: Centres then aimed his gun at me saying "G—d—n you, you want call any body else a liar," and fired. He said that this was a true statement and if Centres could prove out of it, all right. Both men had been drinking and that may account for the trouble.

THE Stanford band left with banners flying for Liberty yesterday afternoon in Menefee's 'bus drawn by four mules. They are to make music for the Fair this week.

BUT little interest in the local option election to be held here Saturday has manifested itself yet; though it will likely get hot enough by the time the vote is taken. Our opinion is that the drys will win by a fair majority.

FIGHTING AT THE FAIR.—Geo. Ballard and Henry Mitchell created a panic at the negro Fair at Danville Saturday afternoon by a fight, which resulted in Ballard being fatally shot. They quarreled and Mitchell claims Ballard struck him in the face with a hatchet. It was reported here that in making the arrest Chief of Police G. T. Helm had been fatally cut, but it proved a canard.

DEATH'S DOINGS.

—The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Martin, of the Willow Grove neighborhood, died Friday morning.

—Mrs. Monroe Smith died last week after a short illness. She was Mr. Smith's second wife and at this time of her marriage to him was Mrs. Shipton Estes, by whom she had a number of children. Some four years ago and more than ten after the death of her first husband, she married Mr. Smith, who is again left alone in his old age and for whom much sympathy is felt.

—Mr. T. Curtis Watte, of whose stroke of paralysis we told in our last, died about midnight, Thursday, in the 54th year of his age. He was the son of Mr. Richardson Watte, who was killed several years ago, by the cars, while crossing the Rochester trestle near town. For 29 years he was clerk for the book house of Charles T. Deering, Louisville, and that gentleman came up to attend the burial, and added his testimony to the worth and integrity of the deceased. "I never knew a truer man," he said to the writer. For several years Mr. Watte has lived with his friend, J. B. Higgins, and they were partners in the coal business. They were raised together and seemed almost like brothers, though no kin. He never married and has no close relations. The Old Fellows, of which he was a devoted member, took charge of the remains and interred them with the impressive ceremonies of the order in Butalo Cemetery, Friday afternoon.
